Post-War Program

FOOD FOR SOLDIERS

THE best fed Army in history was not the result of haphazard operation. Instead it was the result of a carefully organized program of research in food and food packaging, the aim of which was to improve troop feeding and find better methods of delivering food in such condition that it would be acceptable and nutritious.

The Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces has as its mission the improvement and the development of more nutritious foods for military feeding and the perfection of packing and packaging of all food items.

Prior to World War II, the Institute had a staff of ten with a budget in three figures. Its equipment was a hot plate and a tea kettle. Naturally the scope of operation was limited but ideas for an expanded program of research and development were available on paper or in the minds of those concerned in the work. Confronted with the problem of feeding an Army that was to grow to ten million men fighting in all parts of the world a new program was inaugurated and made history in troop feeding during the war.

The present Institute is a peacetime operation, the successor of the old Subsistence Research and Development Laboratory which did that spectacular job during the war. The reorganized Institute has the newest and best in laboratory equipment with competent personnel and is already at work on an extensive research and development program which will be an important contribution to national security in time of war or other emergency.

The Institute is located at 1849 West Pershing Road, Chicago, Ill., and is under the direction of Col. Charles S. Lawrence, assisted by a staff of 200 men and women with technical training and experience. Under its sponsorship, basic food research is being carried on in 120 laboratories, colleges, universities and industrial laboratories throughout the country.

The Institute's three mobile laboratories go to canning factories and make analyses of products to safeguard the product against potential spoilage. These movable scientific laboratories proved their worth when nearly a half-million dozen can of peas were protected from spoilage during the war. In their first year of service the mobile units alone saved two million dollars in the Army's food bill.

To improve the variety and nutritional value of the soldier's diet, projects are under way in the many sections of the

Few Rank Reductions Seen in USN & USMC

Because most of the Reserve and temporary officers now being transferred to the Regular establishments are in the lower commissioned ranks, the termination of temporary promotions following the end of the emergency is not expected to cause large-scale demotions in the officer ranks of the Navy and Marine Corps.

As both services pass an approximate halfway mark in their transfer programs, unofficial surveys indicate that no reductions will be necessary in junior ranks, and few, if any, will be made among officers of Commander and Lt. Colonel and above.

Although the system of temporary promotions instituted at the start of the emergency implied that general reductions would be made at a date fixed by law at the end of the fiscal year in the year following the declaration of peace, unless at an earlier date of the Navy's choice, it appears that these temporary ranks will generally be extended on a permanent basis.

It is impossible to foretell with certainty at this time what changes in rank will be necessary. When the transfer program is completed, however, percentages allowed for each rank will be applied to the lineal precedence lists of the Navy and Marine Corps to determine permanent ranks. No reductions are anticipated at present.

This view is substantiated, in part, by the numerous retirements of senior officers already effected by "plucking boards" but is based primarily on the influx of a predominance of junior officers into Regular ranks through the transfer program. The officers permanently commissioned in the Regular Navy, including Naval Academy graduates and non-Academy men commissioned before the war, now number approximately 13,750, but will be augmented by up to 10,000 Reserve and temporary officers through the transfer program.

Of about 34,100 requests for transfer received thus far by the Navy, over half have come from officers serving in the rank of Lt. (jg) and below. A breakdown shows that 23.0 per cent of the applications have come from Lt. (jg), 22.2 from Ensigns, 15.4 from Lieutenants, 11.6 from chief warrant officers, 11.3 from Lieutenant Commanders, and only 7.1 from warrant officers, 7.0 from Commanders, and 1.5 from Captains.

The Marine Corps has withheld a similar breakdown, but its selection board has recommended the transfer of only a very few Reserve and temporary officers for Captaincies or above.

Applicants for transfer to the Regular Navy numbered approximately 34,100, of which 29,075 were eligible. Of these, 6,250 have been turned down and notified by personal letter. Already selected for transfer and announced in Alnavs are 7,648, of which about 5,300 have been confirmed by the Senate.

The 7,648 selected for transfer include 2,621 general line officers, 2,658 aviators of the line, 481 for engineering duty only, 634 Supply Corps, 258 Medical Corps, 182

No 16-Year Retirements

The Secretary of the Navy has acceded to the views of the War Department and agreed upon a revision of the enlisted men's retirement bill which will drop all provision for 16-year transfers to the Fleet Reserve for Navy and Marine Corps enlisted men or 16-year retirements for the Army.

Secretaries Forrestal and Patterson advised Chairman Thomas, of the Senate Committee this week of their agreement on this point and their recommendations for the retention in the bill of a 20-year Fleet Reserve for the Navy and a 20-year retirement for Army men, the latter being virtually the same as is now in force.

This action virtually kills all hope of a 16-year program for enlisted men. The bill (S. 1438) originally set up the 16- and 20-year transfers for the Sea Services only, and in that form passed the Senate. The House subsequently approved the measure, but accepted an amendment offered by Representative Sparkman of Alabama extending like privileges to the Army. When the bill came back to the Senate for consideration of the House

Housing for Post-war Army Posts Planned

The War Department has established a long-range plan for the continuing development and improvement of all Army installations to be retained for permanent use.

Included in the survey, which is to lay plans for a ten-year construction program, will be plans for adequate, modern quarters for officers, warrant officers, and married noncommissioned officers, and comfortable barracks for other enlisted personnel. It is hoped by this means to forestall the disgracefully inadequate quarters in which Regular Service personnel were housed when temporary structures fell into disrepair following World War I.

Planning boards will be set up at each post, camp, station and airfield with the dual mission of preparing a systematic program for the development of the installation as a facility for its intended purpose and then submitting construction programs and supporting data to the War Department on which to base military appropriations and authorization acts necessary to realize the objectives of the plan.

That portion of the master plan and construction program which is required for review and approval by the War Department will be submitted annually beginning with the calendar year 1947 to reach the War Department by 15 Aug.

The commanding generals answerable directly to the War Department are charged with the establishment of the boards at installations under their command, except in occupied enemy territory where the action is optional with the theater or department commander concerned.

The Chief of Engineers in collaboration with the commanding generals of the Army Air Forces, Army Ground Forces, and the heads of technical services of the War Department, will develop criteria

Mandatory Elimination To be Asked for Army

In presenting to the House Military Affairs Committee his reasons for the proposed 25,000 increase in Regular Army Commissioned strength, General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower on 10 July declared that he believes that "a certain percentage of attrition should be made mandatory by law."

"The Class B Law," the Chief of Staff told the committee, "was difficult to carry out because of the pressure brought to bear to retain some officers. We must have a different and more effective elimination law."

General Eisenhower declared that an attrition plan is being prepared and will be presented to Congress "in course of time." He said that there will be a promotion bill which will include forced attrition "to get rid of the unfit."

It is known that a number of members of the Committee feel that with the increasing of the strength of the corps of commissioned officers of the Regular Army there should be some system of elimination, both for the purpose of getting rid of unfit as well as to speed promotion without overloading the upper grades.

Following General Eisenhower's testimony the Committee went into executive session and voted to report the officer increase bill favorably. Like action was taken recently by a subcommittee of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, so that it is quite possible for the measure to become law before the Summer recess of Congress.

In voting to report the bill, the House committee tacked on an amendment providing for the establishment of an "optometry corps." This was originally provided in a bill passed by both Houses but vetoed by President Truman on the grounds that Optometrists would be commissioned in the proposed "Medical Service Corps."

In reply to various questions, General Eisenhower informed the committee as follows:

"To have this bill passed is the most important personnel problem I have."

"Of the 25,000 asked for, General Eisenhower said, a bloc will be reserved for enlisted men."

"In the next 15 or 20 years we cannot come down below 850,000 in the post-war Army."

"Priority in the transfer of Reserves to the Regular Army is given to those in the ground forces who have had at least one year of combat service. We are not excluding others who had no chance to get into combat."

"Now we can really send only officers of the Regular Army to foreign service. All who have had only one year of combat service are on the number one priority list for foreign service."

"I do not believe there is as much 'caste' as so many writers claim. General Huebner, one of the best combat officers came up from the ranks of the privates."

"I do not believe the idea of requiring one year of enlisted service as a prerequisite

Bikini Tests

New York Times—"Opinion on the scientific importance of the Bikini test is divided. According to one school of thought nothing can be learned by exploding an atomic bomb amid seventy-three crewless-anchored ships; according to another the test is bound to reveal much that is not known. There is every reason to believe that the second school is right."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"It may be fairly concluded at this time that the A-bomb has not yet put navies into the discard. Neither does it end, for the foreseeable future, the necessity for powerful armies and air forces."

Washington Star—"Nothing could be as foolish as to suppose now that the atomic bomb—because it did not live up to all the fantastic things said of it—has somehow been greatly reduced in importance at Bikini."

Baltimore Sun—"While the results of the test may alter past conceptions of protective armor and the relative value of various types of ships, they surely will not lead to the immediate scrapping of our Army and Navy. At least for the time being change promises to be in the direction of countering the worst effects of the bomb."

New York Herald Tribune—"The human capacity for becoming injured to almost any horror, the vaulting imagination which defies almost any phenomenon to meet its challenge, are stubborn obstacles to any true comprehension of what went on at Bikini. Achieved by one plane, dropping one bomb, it should be a grim enough manifestation for any one."

Philadelphia Record—"We have only begun to learn the effects of this Bikini tryout. Just because the palm trees still wave and those goats still munch, let's not lose the healthy respect for atomic peril many of us were beginning to acquire."

New York Sun—"Though it will be some time before all of its effects are charted and correlated, the bomb appears to have done just about what the scientists anticipated. There were none of the things the more credulous had expected."

New York Daily Worker—"The Bikini 'test' only added new proof to the fact that this weapon must be outlawed and all atomic warfare must be outlawed. That's the Soviet proposition. The Baruch proposition doesn't go that far. It tells others to accept control while we hold the monopoly."

New Regular Officers

Procedures for the integration of the 9,800 newly-commissioned Regular Army officers are now well under way.

Refusal of commissions upon notification will probably reach about four or five per cent of the total, but tabulation of records is not complete at this time and the exact figure cannot be given. However, such refusals, usually in the case of separated personnel who have since application obtained civilian employment exceeding their expectations, will result in an additional chance for appointment for several hundred top men on the eligible list.

On 5 July the War Department issued Special Orders No. 148, announcing the appointment of the officers and showing their old serial number, new Regular Army serial number and date of rank. The grade and date of rank of each individual as shown in the order is computed as of 28 June 1946.

The War Department explains that acceptance of these commissions in the Regular Army will not affect any existing commissions in the AUS without component, with the exception that those commissions now held as a result of promotions under the provisions of War Department Circulars 10 or 140, 1946, are administratively vacated and appointment in the AUS is effected in the grade held immediately prior to processing for relief from active duty. In cases where appointment in the Regular Army is in the same grade as formerly or presently held the Regular Army grade will govern.

In the case of appointees who hold only a commission in the Reserve or National Guard appointment is made in the AUS without component in the same grade as held in the Reserve or National Guard.

Former officers appointed in the Regular Army are appointed in the AUS without component in the grade held immediately prior to processing for relief from active duty.

Officers appointed in the Regular Army who are now on active duty and not on terminal leave are assigned to present duty and station.

Officers on terminal leave are assigned to an Officer Replacement Pool, but will remain at home pending receipt of War Department orders announcing their initial duty station assignment. Terminal leave is terminated effective upon date of acceptance of appointment.

Appointees who are on inactive status and those who are now in a warrant officer or an enlisted status are assigned to an Officer Replacement Pool for record purposes but will remain at home or present military stations pending orders.

The discharge of warrant officer or enlisted appointees who accept appointment will be effected by their commanding officers as of the day prior to acceptance of appointment.

Assignment to Pools

Officer replacement pools to which appointees of the various branches will be assigned are as follows:

Air Corps, Barksdale Field, Fla.; Corps of Engineers, Fort Belvoir, Va.; Signal Corps, Fort Monmouth, N. J.; Cavalry, Fort Knox, Ky.; Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla.; Coast Artillery Corps, Fort Bliss, Tex.; Infantry, Fort McClellan, Ala.; Quartermaster Corps, Camp Lee, Va.; Chemical Warfare Service, Edgewood Arsenal, Md.; Ordnance Department, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.; Adjutant General's Department, New Orleans, La.; Finance Department, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Judge Advocate General's Department, Chicago, Ill.; Chaplains Corps, New Orleans, La.; Medical, Dental, Veterinary, and Pharmacy Corps, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Philippine Scouts

Philippine Scout units, now undergoing training, will next year be included in the U. S. Army's Pacific Theater strength, replacing a corresponding number of continental United States troops.

Under present War Department plans such units which have become fully trained and operational will be placed on duty after 1 July 1947.

Plans call for a Philippine Scout strength of 50,000 and recent reports show that enlistments have now reached 20,000.

Recent legislation authorizes substantial increases in pay for the Scouts, new monthly base pay being 50 pesos for privates instead of the former 18 pesos, with corresponding increases in higher grades. Present law also establishes special benefits in the form of travel allowances, quarters, subsistence, transportation of dependents, death gratuity and insurance.

A substantial increase in enlistments has followed authorization of a pay scale which compares favorably with current pay of the Philippine Army, now completely under control of the newly-formed government of the islands.

Army Retirement Bills

Consideration of S. 974, the bill providing for involuntary retirement of Regular Army officers, and retirement benefits for officers of the Reserves and the National Guard after stated years of active plus inactive service, is to be taken under consideration by the full Senate Military Committee early next week. The bill, as revised by a subcommittee and reported to the full committee, was reported in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of 6 July.

The Identical House bill, H.R. 6954, was taken under consideration this week, along with other retirement bills, by a subcommittee of the House Military Committee. Present as witnesses were Brig. Gen. Ira P. Swift, Chief of Personnel Service, of the War Department, Brig. Gen. Frank Evans, Executive Secretary of the Reserve Officers Association, and Col. John T. Taylor, national Legislative Counsel of the American Legion.

Further hearings are to be held on H.R. 6954 so as to expedite a report to the full committee and to secure action at this session of Congress.

NG Strength Increased

The authorized strength of the National Guard has been increased to 682,114. Maj. Gen. Butler B. Miltonberger, chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced 11 July.

Authorized divisional strength has been increased by two Infantry divisions, making a total of 25 Infantry and two Armored divisions.

Efficiency of the National Guard as an M-Day force is being insured, General Miltonberger said, through rigid selection of officers, particular attention to the physical fitness of enlisted men and a more efficient training system than ever before employed.

All combat ground units should be activated by 1 Jan. 1947, General Miltonberger said, and all air units by 1 Nov. 1946. All air squadrons, he added, are coming into service fully manned.

General Miltonberger emphasized the importance of National Guard Coast artillery units, predicting that in the future such units will be highly mobile and equipped with weapons applicable to the atomic and guided missile age.

To Honor Adm. Ingersoll

At the instance of Representative Robert A. Grant of Indiana the citizens of La Porte in that state will give a hearty welcome to Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, USN, wartime Commander-in-Chief of the United States Atlantic Fleet.

An outstanding reception has been planned by the city of La Porte. Attending the ceremonies will be representatives of all sections of the state. Senator Willis will attend as well as Representative Grant.

The Admiral will be given the key of the city, which is his home, and will be paid other honors as a demonstration of gratitude on the part of the City and the State for the magnificent service he rendered to the country during the war.

Marine Corps Promotions

Second Lieutenants of the Marine Corps, including the Reserve and officers on terminal leave or at home awaiting retirement, may be promoted to First Lieutenant to rank from 30 June.

Eligible for promotion under Alnav 371 are:

All Second Lieutenants whose number in grade on the combined lineal list of 1 July 1945 is between 6538 and 7146, inclusive; and

All Second Lieutenants whose number in grade on the combined lineal list of 1 Jan. 1946 is between 4263 and 4821, inclusive.

No promotion may be made unless officers are on active duty.

Gen. Kirk at AMA

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk was a key figure recently at the 95th annual meeting of the American Medical Association in San Francisco at which the Army exhibited a record of its wartime achievements in medicine.

The Surgeon General addressed the AMA convention concerning the War Department's medical developments in connection with the exhibit.

Enlisted Retired Pay

The table of pay of retired enlisted men, printed on page 1335 of last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL applies only to those retired for physical disability, whose pay is based on three-quarters of active pay. Others retired at less than 30 years service are paid at 2 1/2 percent times number of years of active duty. New tables to be issued by the War Department will specify this difference.

Joins Army & Navy Journal Staff

THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is pleased to announce the addition to its staff of Mr. James O'Shaughnessy, of New York City, as Advertising Consultant.

For many years a most distinguished figure throughout the world in advertising, marketing, and journalism, Mr. O'Shaughnessy also has been closely associated with the Armed Forces. He was General Manager of the Advertising Agencies Corporation, embracing 135 general advertising agencies handling the advertising of the U. S. Navy, Army, and Shipping Board. He planned and conducted national surveys and also advertising campaigns in recruiting for the War and Navy Departments. He also planned and conducted a national survey of Merchant Marine interests for the U. S. Shipping Board and prepared the advertising campaign for promoting the development of the American Merchant Marine.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy has represented American concerns as advertising manager and interpreter in Belgium, Holland, and Germany. He has been advertising manager for many publications including the Chicago Morning Examiner and the Chicago Commerce, and was business manager of Liberty magazine.

Because of his wide knowledge of the field his associates have elected him to such important posts as member-at-large of the National Executive Board and executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, counsel of the National Association of Country Weeklies, and a member of the National Panel of Arbitrators.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy taught post-graduate classes in advertising agency procedure at Columbia University for three years; he lectured to classes in advertising and journalism at Temple University, Mercer College, Notre Dame, Missouri State University, and North Carolina State University. He organized the School of Journalism at Notre Dame.

As Advertising Consultant for the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, Mr. O'Shaughnessy's vast experience and wise counsel will be devoted to increasing the value of our advertising columns both to the reader and to the advertiser.

Regular Navy Nurse Corps

The Navy Department has decided to ask Congress for legislation to establish the Nurse Corps as a Staff of the Regular Navy with full military rank from Ensign to Captain, inclusive, with the pay allowances, and benefits of their rank.

Pending such legislation, Nurses will be commissioned in the Regular Navy Nurse Corps with temporary ranks. This was authorized by Public Law 238 of the 78th Congress (1944), which granted Navy nurses military status for the duration and six months.

Nurses of the active and inactive Reserve whose requests for transfer have been given favorable consideration will be transferred in accordance with this temporary legislation, and registered nurses from civilian life will be invited to apply at offices of Naval officer procurement.

The Navy requests applications for transfer from Reserve nurses.

Accumulated Leave Bill

To provide for the payment of amounts due enlisted personnel for leaves not taken out of leaves amounting to 2½ days per month for each month of service beginning 8 Sept. 1939, up to 120 days of leave, the Senate Military Committee has reported an amended H. R. 4051. The bill already has passed the House to grant to enlisted personnel pay in lieu of accumulated leave.

Representing the Bureau of the Budget, the War, Navy, and Treasury Departments on the monetary payment feature of the legislation, Under Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan, testifying before the Senate Military Committee this week, suggested a method of payment designed to overcome the inflationary dangers of paying in cash for unused leave time. The suggested plan calls for the issuing of bonds to mature in 5 years. The bonds would bear 2½ per cent interest. Enlisted personnel discharged before 1 Jan. 1943 would be paid a lump-sum in cash. Personnel (enlisted) discharged between 1 Jan. 1943 and 1 July 1947 would be paid in bonds plus cash for any fraction of $25. Personnel (officer) discharged between the date of enactment of the law and 1 July 1947 would be paid in bonds plus cash for any fraction of $25.

Secretary Sullivan in explaining the effect of the bill said:

"After enactment the leave of both officers and enlisted men is governed by the bill. The Act approved 8 May 1874, as amended by the Act approved 29 July 1876, is repealed, without however, affecting leave accumulated thereunder prior to enactment of the bill, and officers and enlisted men are put on the same basis for the future. Regulations are to be issued by the Secretaries of War, the Navy, and the Treasury for the taking and charging of leave. Such regulations are to provide equal treatment for officers and enlisted men, are to establish to the fullest extent practicable uniform policies for the several branches of the armed forces, and are to provide for the taking of leave in the future annually as it accrues to the extent consistent with military requirements and other exigencies."

In the bill as reported the Senate Military Committee has stipulated that after 31 Aug. 1946, enlisted men and officers may allow their leave periods to accumulate up to 90 days only, and the accrued leave will have to be taken before discharge, separation from the service, or retirement. Enlisted personnel have had no leave time heretofore to accumulate; officer personnel have been allowed to accumulate leave up to 120 days.

Early action on the bill by the Senate is expected. If passed, the bill will then go to conference, because of the changes from the bill as passed by the House.

Armed Forces Staff College

The Armed Forces Staff College, with Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons as its first Commandant, has been established at the Naval Base, Norfolk, to train selected officers of the armed forces in joint operations.

The first of its classes of 150 officers, divided about equally among the Army, Navy, and Army Air Forces, will enter in January 1947 for a five months course. It is planned to graduate two classes a year thereafter.

Instruction will include orientation, organization, characteristics and employment of Army, Navy and Air Forces and the relation of those forces to one another; the study of joint staff techniques and procedures, the preparation of plans for amphibious and airborne operations involving the employment of joint forces; and the study of organization, composition and functions of theater and joint task forces and the strategical, tactical and logistical responsibilities of their commanders.

The institution will be under the jurisdiction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, with the Navy, through the Chief of Naval Operations, responsible for its operation and maintenance.

Command of the College will be rotated among general or flag officers of the three services. There will be two deputy commandants, one each from the services other than that to which the Commandant belongs. The faculty will be made up in approximately equal numbers of Army, Navy and Army Air Forces officers. The exact size of the faculty has not yet been determined.

Honor Gen. Marietta

At the meeting of the American College of Chest Physicians held in San Francisco last week in connection with the meeting of the American Medical Association Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta was elected President.

In paying this distinguished honor to General Marietta the American College of Chest Physicians has recognized not only the high professional qualification of this officer, but has shown its esteem for the Army Medical Corps. The honor is the greater because the American College of Chest Physicians includes in its 2,000 members outstanding physicians of all the Pan-American republics. To become a member of the American College of Chest Physicians it is necessary for a doctor of this specialty to be named an associate member and then in order to become a full member he is required to pass a rigid examination.

General Marietta, as a leading exponent of internal medicine, has long participated in the affairs of the American College of Chest Physicians. He is now a member of its Council on Military Affairs and Public Health.

The Service which knows General

Marietta's great ability is gratified and complimented at his election by this important organization.

General Marietta's last assignment was as commandant of the Army Medical Center and Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington. He is now on terminal leave which will expire on 14 Aug., when he will retire. He and his charming wife have established their residence at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments in Washington.

Standardize OCS Training

A new Army Officer Candidate School program established at Fort Benning, Ga., aimed to standardize the training of officers for the ground arms and services, was announced 10 July by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces.

Consolidated in the single school at Fort Benning, training will be supplemented by associate basic courses at ground force and technical schools.

All Officer Candidate Schools now in operation will be discontinued after graduation of those classes which were enrolled prior to 1 Sept., 1946.

Training will be extended from the present 17-week course to a 24-week course composed of two phases. During the first phase of eight weeks, the candidates will be thoroughly screened to insure retention of only the most promising cadets. The subjects to be studied during the trial period include physical conditioning, weapons training, elementary infantry tactics and military courtesy.

Those who meet the requirements will receive instructions in administrative, supply and disciplinary functions of company officers in the second phase of 16 weeks.

Three classes of 200 men each will enter every two months from quotas allotted each arm and service. The successful candidates will be commissioned second lieutenants in the Army of the United States.

Following graduation, the new officers will attend an associate basic course of their arm at one of the following ground force or technical schools for three months or five months, respectively:

The Armored School—Fort Knox, Ky.
The Infantry School—Fort Benning, Ga.
The Field Artillery School—Fort Sill, Okla.
The Anti-Aircraft Artillery School—Fort Bliss, Tex.
The Coast Artillery School—Fort Scott, Cal.
Transportation Corps—Fort Eustis, Va.
Signal Corps—Fort Monmouth, N. J.
Engineer Corps—Fort Belvoir, Va.
Ordnance Department—Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.
Quartermaster Corps—Camp Lee, Va.
Chemical Warfare Service—Edgewood Arsenal, Md.
Chaplain's School—Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.
Adjutant General's School—Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.
Provost Marshal's School—Camp Bullis, Tex.

Upon completion of the associate basic course the officers will be available for assignment.

Signal Corps Procurement

MAJ. J. G. BENT, JR.
Chief, Purchases Branch,
Office of the Chief Signal Officer

THE Signal Corps is presently charged with the responsibility of procuring items of Signal communications, cryptographic and meteorological equipment which includes radar, radio, telephone, wire and cable, and photographic equipment.

In purchasing this equipment during 1947 Fiscal Year the Signal Corps is placing increasing emphasis upon research and development into new and unexplored fields of electronic research. Indicative of the emphasis the Signal Corps is placing upon this important work is the fact that the 1947 Fiscal Year budget provided more than twice as much expenditure for research and development as for procurement of items for issue to troops.

Signal equipment is based upon sciences which are progressing very rapidly, necessitating prosecution of an intensive and continuous research program. To carry out that program Signal Corps is securing the services of outstanding scientists of the nation by placing research and development contracts with industrial laboratories, educational institutions and independent privately endowed research organizations. The importance of and need for this program is demonstrated by the fact that at V-J day the Signal Corps was not procuring a single important piece of equipment that had been standard at the time hostilities began. The Chief Signal Officer is thereby taking necessary action so that the Army will have the most advanced and improved equipment available for the defense of the country in time of an emergency.

The procurement organization and procedures of the Signal Corps have to a large extent been revised to a more streamlined form which is considered appropriate for peacetime operations, but still in keeping with the enlarged research and development program of the Army. All important procurement operations are now concentrated at the Philadelphia Signal Corps Procurement District which has branches at the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey and the Signal Corps Photographic Center, Astoria, Long Island, New York in order to facilitate procurement of equipment and research by these two installations. The Commanding Officer, Philadelphia Signal Corps Procurement District reports directly to the Director, Procurement Division, Office of the Chief Signal Officer.

It is well recognized that the procurement methods of the technical services are in a transition period. The ultimate peacetime procedures and organization of the Signal Corps may be modified considerably in the event of enactment of pending legislation looking to the establishment of a single department of National Defense.

Report of Clemency Board

The War Department Advisory Board on Clemency has reduced sentences in approximately 85 per cent of the cases reviewed during the past year.

In a report to Under Secretary of War Royall, former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, chairman of the Board, says that the cases of over 22,500 general prisoners have been reviewed. The total includes all cases of general prisoners returned to the United States from overseas theaters prior to 1 May of this year.

It is estimated that, through termination or remission of sentences as fixed by clemency action, plus "good conduct time" allowed for good behavior during confinement, slightly less than one-third of the cases considered were released from confinement by the end of June.

Within the next year it is expected that an additional one-third will have been freed from confinement. In turn, one-third of this remainder will be released by December, 1947, and another third in 1948. The relatively small number left in confinement, the report says, will consist of prisoners convicted of the most serious civil and military offenses, such as murder, rape, and desertion to avoid hazardous duty.

and technical guidance material pertaining to buildings and facilities common to activities throughout the Military Establishment.

The Army commanders, Army Air Forces, major commanders and department commanders will review and comment upon all master plans and construction programs forwarded through them and will effect the maximum of coordination practicable at their level of command.

Composition of Boards

The board established at each installation will normally be composed as follows:

The commanding officer or commanding general of the post, who will act as board chairman.

The post engineer, who will also act as secretary and recorder.

Such other regular members as may be desired by the installation commander.

The appropriate U. S. division engineer or his representative.

Associate members, who will have no vote and will be acceptable by the Army commander or comparable level of command. Associate members will be from adjoining or adjacent military or Naval installations for the purpose of coordinating efforts and to prevent planning for duplicate facilities.

Duties of Boards

The boards will meet regularly and become familiar with buildings and facilities comprising the entire installation. In addition to developing a plan for the utilization and development of the installations they will prepare recommendations concerning the disposal, inactivation, activation, acquisition, or major modification of buildings, facilities, associated appurtenances and real estate.

Boards will apply instructions received from higher echelons of command in the development of a plan and program for installations. Cooperation and coordination with other military and naval installations and activities is emphasized.

NEW PONTIAC

Finest of the Famous "Silver Streaks"

A FINE OLD NAME SOARS TO GREATER FAME

With every advance in design and in engineering, one Pontiac quality has remained unchanged—its reputation for dependable performance and extra value.

The new 1946 Pontiac strengthens that fine reputation. To a background of fine performance, proved and reproved during war years, Pontiac engineers have added important improvements—as many, in fact, as in any prewar year. This continuous endeavor to improve the basic goodness of every new Pontiac began years ago when its famous Silver Streak styling introduced a new concept of value in the low-price field.

The 1946 Pontiac, still in the low-price field, brings dependability, performance and value to a new high level. A fine old name now soars to even greater fame!

Naval Ordnance Plans

THE financial planning for the U. S. Navy, Bureau of Ordnance, points toward the expenditure of a sizable portion of its 1947 funds for research and development of modern weapons of warfare.

For many years the Bureau of Ordnance has worked hand in glove with United States scientists. Out of their co-operative efforts have come many of the devices which hastened the cessation of hostilities in 1945. Some of the items, although of the "Buck Rogers" type, have become well known to the American public in a general way: Bat, ram jet, VT or proximity fuze and Tiny Tim.

The effectiveness of these developments makes it imperative that the Bureau of Ordnance continue this search for newer and better missiles, guns and fire control. Accordingly, of proposed total expenditures of $247,990,000, the Bureau of Ordnance intends to put $60,000,000 into developments of new weapons and equipment, chief of which are:

Guided Missiles	$11,500,000
Fire Control	10,000,000
Ammunition and Explosives...	10,000,000
Guns and Mounts.....	6,500,000

It is also necessary to maintain the Ordnance items which are placed aboard ships. This job falls to the Bureau of Ordnance which during the fiscal year of 1947 plans to expend a total of $35,000,000 to overhaul, repair and maintain shipboard equipment:

Guns and Mounts	$8,000,000
Fire Control	8,000,000
Underwater Ordnance	7,000,000

Because of the heavy requirements for training and reserves the largest portion of the Bureau of Ordnance appropriation for 1947 will be spent in the procurement of items which will be produced in large part by commercial companies. The greater portion of the funds allotted to production, $86,000,000, will find its way into the following items:

Ammunition	$28,000,000
Fire Control	27,000,000
Projectiles	8,800,000
Guns and Mounts	6,400,000
Mines and Depth Charges.....	4,400,000

Civil Engineering Corps, and 127 Dental Corps.

Officers at sea have submitted 55.5 per cent of the applications for transfer to the Regular Navy, and 34.0 have come from officers on shore duty, and an additional 10.5 per cent from officers on inactive duty. Officers on inactive duty have been recalled to active duty immediately following approval of their requests, but may suffer loss of precedence to be computed by the Bureau of Personnel.

To ensure that the applications of all officers desiring to transfer to the Regular Navy will be presented to the Selection Board, each ship and station has been ordered to report by airmail speedletter the action taken thus far by each officer listed in 1 July Roster of Officers as desiring to transfer. Officers who have not been informed of either acceptance or rejection will be notified by the Bureau of Personnel of action required if applications have not reached the Bureau.

The Marine Corps has received approximately 10,000 applications, of which 7,839 fulfilled qualifications. As of 17 June, the selection board had considered 6,709 of these applicants, and selected 2,568 for commissions and 806 for warrants, all of which have been confirmed by the Senate. Of the 6,709 considered, 2,207 were ground officers, 1,823 were aviators, and 2,679 warrants.

With completion of two more lists awaiting approval of higher authority, the Marine Corps selection board has since narrowed its candidates to 700 still to be considered. In addition, billets as Second Lieutenants are being left open to approximately 1,000 soon to be commissioned in college training programs.

Is this the CAPITAL WARSHIP of TOMORROW?

An Admiral of the Fleet said recently that the capital warship of tomorrow may well be the submarine. Atom powered subs that launch atomic rockets without surfacing are regarded as distinctly possible. Electric Boat is dedicated to helping keep the U. S. foremost in submarine development.

U. S. COAST GUARD

COAST Guard Cadets of the class of 1948 will learn the latest aviation rescue techniques from 22 July to 10 August this summer as they train at Coast Guard air stations.

In the air they will be instructed in Search and Rescue Patrol procedures, dropping rescue gear, and the use of radar and Loran, an electronics navigational aid system operated by the Coast Guard. Independent of visibility conditions an aviator or ship's navigator can determine his position by Loran.

Other training will include handling of aircraft aboard ship, use of a ship to reduce waves for a seaplane landing and taking off, search and rescue organizations, operations and communications. The cadets will also familiarize themselves with rescue and survival equipment, including parachutes, lifejackets, liferafts, and pyrotechnics.

Experienced Coast Guard aviators and boat-handlers will demonstrate to the cadets handling and approaching aircraft by small boats; rescue and survival gear; and the use of helicopters.

Of the 73 cadets to receive the training, one third will train at Salem (Mass.) Air Station, one-third will train at Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., and the remaining third will be assigned to Elizabeth City Air Station, North Carolina.

Third Class cadets have already been divided into two groups to begin their sea training in summer cruises on both the North Atlantic and Great Lakes.

One group of 54 cadets left the Coast Guard Academy on 28 June on the 255-foot cutter Sebago for a month-long cruise in the Atlantic. The itinerary calls for stops at Bermuda, Antigua, BWI, San Juan, and Nassau.

Another group of 55 cadets traveled by train to meet the $10,000,000 icebreaker Mackinaw at Buffalo, for a month cruise on the Lakes. On 30 July both groups will exchange facilities, and then the entire class will return again to the Academy on 30 August. From 1-14 Sept. the third class Cadets will go to Wakefield, Mass., for small arms target practice.

All Navy vessels and boats, Coast Guard-manned, have either been decommissioned or had Coast Guard crews removed for Navy operation except the small boats Hiram (58 feet) currently stationed at Ketchikan, Alaska, and the Northern Light (51 feet) also stationed at Ketchikan. Both are expected to be decommissioned in the near future.

"Established in obedience to an insistent demand for an official organ for members of the American Defense and those concerned with it, The Army and Navy Journal will be published in the interest of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Its interest will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 20, 1863.

SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1946

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Maintenance in accordance with professional studies of our national needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized and trained to utilize and employ materials of war developed by continuing scientific research, and backed by Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture of such materials.
2. Reconstruction of National Guard and Reserve components federally aided and encouraged to maximum efficiency, and effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and universal military training.
3. Increase in active and retired pay and allowances to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American standards of living, and protection of such pay from reduction through income taxes.
4. Institution of orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks to prevent stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
5. Continuance and expansion of service schools, including the Army and Navy Staff College, attendance of which shall be open to National Guard and Reserve officers.
6. Suitable rank and retirement benefits for former enlisted personnel and warrant officers who served as commissioned officers during the war.
7. Grant of the same rights and benefits to those who elect to remain in the Services as will be enjoyed by the discharged veterans.
8. Upward revision of pension scales to assure Service widows and dependents a living income.
9. Compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
10. Maintenance of stock piles of strategic materials.

WITH the prospect that Congress will remain in session through July every effort should be made to enact into law those measures immediately essential to the National Defense, and to the orderly formulation of the post-war military establishments. Included in this category are those providing for the retirement of Regular Army officers, including former enlisted personnel, at their highest war ranks; the setting up of a system of retirement for Reserves and National Guard; the establishment of the 20-year transferred Fleet Reserve for the Navy and Marine Corps; the increase in the corps of commissioned officers for the Regular Army; and an increase in funds for the training of the Organized Reserves of the Army. The bill for the retirement of Army Regular, Reserve, and National Guard personnel has been long delayed by differences as to the provisions for the Reserve components, but an understanding has now been reached, as reported in last week's ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, which has the support of President Truman as well as the War Department and the representatives of the Reserves and National Guard. Inasmuch as the Navy has been operating since last Winter under a measure giving highest war rank to Regulars and former enlisted men as they retire, the same benefits should no longer be withheld from Army personnel. If the bill is not enacted the latter must continue to revert to their lower permanent rank, and consequently lower pay, when they pass from the active list. It is unfortunate that the War and Navy Departments, at the insistence of the former, have agreed to drop the 16-year provisions for both Services from the enlisted men's bill. The remaining 20-year provision for the Navy, however, should not be further postponed—it should be made law now and plans laid for reviving the 16-year measure at the next session. The increase in commissioned strength for the Regular Army is vital, for if unauthorized many fine young officers will make lucrative commercial connections and lose interest in Army careers. It is unfortunate that the War Department pursued piece-meal tactics in seeking its increases, but since this course has been taken we urge the Congress to act speedily. For the Army Reserve the annual appropriation bill provides only $56,000,000 which is sufficient only for the training of 32,000—just 8 per cent—of those eligible. The excuse has been made that this will be enough to get the system started in its first year, but we hold it is even more important that during this first year there should be opportunity to train all who are willing to devote the time, for otherwise their interest will lag and not so many will seek training in subsequent years. None of these matters is highly controversial and all can be enacted if the leaders will but push them. This we urge them to do.

ACTION of the War and Navy Departments in formulating legislation to make permanent the commissioned status of the Nurses of the Armed Forces wins the unqualified endorsement of all Service personnel and, we feel certain, will meet with sympathetic consideration in Congress. The heroism of these able women in every action from Bataan through to the end of the war and their fine professional skill under all conditions, has earned them the admiration and respect not only of the Services but of the country. Before the war their status was anomalous. In the Navy they were members of the Naval Service, paid on separate, and lower pay scales, but of neither enlisted nor commissioned status. In the Army they held "relative" rank, which benefited them little. Their retired status was below that of officers. With the war, however, it became apparent that the position of the nurses must be strengthened, not only in justice to them personally, but to provide the authority and position to carry out their duties in the most efficient manner. Under that temporary authority they now hold full commissioned grade and are paid under the same pay tables as are commissioned officers of the Army and Navy. It is to preserve that status that both Departments have drafted legislation for presentation to the Bureau of the Budget and ultimately to Congress. The plans now under consideration will give them access to all commissioned grades up to and including captain in the Navy and colonel in the Army, the Director holding the highest grade with the next grades below being available for those holding positions of responsibility and administration in the various hospitals and medical centers. This, too, would strengthen their retirement status, giving them the same retired pay as officers instead of requiring their reversion to the old inadequate pre-war retired pay scales. While they have not had the benefit of organized public relations such as many other branches of the Services have, the letters home from the thousands whose agonies and illness have been eased by their skillful ministrations, have endeared them to families throughout the land. Surely, Congress will be prompt in handling this well merited legislation.

Service Humor

Ship Ahoy

Two soldiers, slightly the worse for a Saturday night celebration, boarded a bus and tried to pay their fare to a man in uniform.

"You've made a mistake," said the officer. "I'm not a conductor, I'm a Naval officer."

"Hey, Joe," exclaimed one of the pair, "Let's get off—we're on a battleship."

—All Hands.

Illmannered

King Arthur: "I hear that you have been misbehaving."

Knight: "In what manner, Sir?"

—Belvoir Castle.

He Had 'Em All

It seems the gate broke down between heaven and hell. St. Peter appeared at the broken part and called out to the devil, "Hi, Satan, it's your turn to fix it this time."

"Sorry," replied the boss of the land beyond the Styx, "my men are too busy to go about fixing a mere gate."

"Well, then," grumbled St. Peter, "I'll have to sue you for breaking our agreement."

"Oh, yeah," said the devil, "where are you going to get a lawyer?"

—5th St. News.

Breathes There the Man

In an overseas Army camp, two inseparable Texans were discussing the grandeur of their native land when another soldier walked over to join them.

Pausing in his eulogies, one of the Lone Star boosters asked the newcomer, "What state you from, Mac?"

He was immediately taken to task by the other Texan.

"Don't ever ask that," the partner drawled. "If a man's from Texas, he'll tell you. If he isn't there's no need to embarrass him."

—5th St. News.

At a Loss

A chaplain attended a banquet at which a clumsy waiter dropped a dish of soup in his lap. He looked around the room with agony, and exclaimed, "Will some layman kindly say something appropriate."

—Belvoir Castle.

Poesy Dept.

Adam's attire was raggy and baggy, And so, by the way, was his girl friend, Eve's;

So he said to his spouse, as he entered the house,

"Let's go and get our annual leaves."

—Cp. Beale Bealiner.

Let's Make-up

A colonel had a man up for not saluting and reprimanded him severely. Two days later to his amazement, the same man passed him and again did not salute.

"Didn't I speak to you about saluting the other day?" he asked curtly.

"Yes," replied the culprit, "but I didn't salute you today because I thought you were still mad at me."

—5th St. News.

Hide and Go Seek

"How'd you get along with your wife in that fight the other night?"

"Aw, she came crawling to me on her knees."

"Yeah. What did she say,"

"Come out from under that bed, you coward."

—Wing Tips.

Ask The Journal

(This Department is maintained as a service for ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL subscribers. Please send return postage for direct reply.)

L.W.C.—We have been advised by the Bureau of Naval Personnel that a Lt. Commander would have to serve a full thirty years in order to be retired with retired pay based upon the sixth pay period.

F.A.—You may apply for retirement prior to the date of the completion of your 20 years' service necessary for retirement, but you cannot be retired and your retirement furlough will not begin until after you have had a full 20 years' active service.

H.H.H.—According to the Bureau of Naval Personnel the U.S.S. Belleau Wood received a Presidential Citation for action beginning on 18 Sept. 1943 and ending 5 Aug. 1945. This is the only citation on record for the U.S.S. Belleau Wood.

W. L. R.—Personnel of the Regular Navy Dental Corps are not being released at the present time, and it is not known how long it will be before resignations will be accepted.

G. H. S.—A reserve officer may request recall to active duty under the provisions of WD Circular 176, 1946. If not a reserve officer a temporary commissioned officer may request a commission in the Reserve, and after receiving this, apply for the recall to active duty in his former AUS grade. The application in either case should be addressed to The Adjutant General's Office, Reserve Section, Washington, D. C.

First Fighter Group

The First Fighter Group, inactivated in Italy in October, 1942, is scheduled to be assigned to the Air University at Montgomery, Ala., and probably will be reactivated in September.

In selecting the Group for tactical experiments in fighter defensive and offensive warfare the AAF has chosen the oldest air combat unit in the country.

Fog Dispersal Experiments

A project devoted exclusively to developing and testing all-weather aircraft landing aids, now is being operated by the United Air Lines at Arcata, Calif., under a letter of intent from the Navy Department. It was announced jointly 9 July by United Air Lines, the Navy and the Army Air Forces. It will be the most complete experimental station of its kind in the world.

Established by the Navy during the war, the project on the north California coast soon will be the scene of air research sponsored by both service and civilian agencies. Many factors connected with aircraft landing and field problems under adverse weather conditions will be studied. Included are airfield aid approach lighting; fog dispersal, such as the new high-pressure fuel oil burners for dissipating fog; continued use and testing of radio and radar approach systems; supersonic fog dispersal methods, and other basic aerological research.

The former Naval Auxiliary Air Station was selected as a bad weather landing aids experiment station because of the prevalence of dense fogs. Following the termination of the war, the AAF and the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics felt the need for such an installation to continue their investigations in airfield lighting and fog dispersal. By pooling resources it was possible more effectively to continue the project, and, at this time, it also was decided to invite various interested civil air agencies to participate.

Pilots Join Airline

Capital Airlines-PCA announces that the following wartime pilots have been added to their pilot staff:

Lt. Col. William J. Gibson, Lt. Edwin L. Walker, Maj. William J. Denton, Jr., Maj. Robert L. Ruple, Jr., Lt. Allan C. Ebell, Capt. Thomas B. Dyer, Winston O. Farmer, Lt. Robert E. S. Terrill, Capt. Andrew A. Black, Lt. Richard Oakley, Capt. Kenneth R. Schaper, Clifford G. Noeller, Paul K. Harris, and Merrill D. Holmes.

Flight Control in Pacific

A joint conference of Army and Navy officers and Civil Aeronautics Authority executives was held at Pacific Air Command headquarters last month to draft a standard procedure for air traffic control to serve as the basis for new regulations to be issued jointly by the Army and Navy air commands in the Pacific.

Coordination between the AAF and the Navy on air traffic control, air-sea rescue, and weather was the main topic under discussion. The conference was under the direction of Lt. Col. S. W. Griffiths,

Flight Control Section, A-3, Pacusa, and was attended by representatives of all major AAF and Navy commands in the Pacific area, including:

XB-36 Ready for Taxi Tests

Engine run-up tests have been successfully completed and taxiing tests have begun on the world's largest land-based bomber, the XB-36, at the Fort Worth, Tex., division of Consolidated Vultee Corporation, Army Air Forces announced 10 July.

The six 3,000 h.p. Pratt & Whitney engines powering the new Army heavy bomber are located in the trailing edge of the wing, three on each side of the fuselage. They provide a pusher effect by means of three-bladed propellers.

The Air Materiel Command supervised design and construction of the plane, which has already undergone safety inspection prior to taxi tests.

Wing span of the bomber is 230 feet, its fuselage length 163 feet, and its height, in taxi position, 55 feet.

AAF Tests Radar Effects

Disproving rumors that the electro-magnetic pulses of radar had effects similar to X-ray or other ultraviolet radiation, the Army Air Forces Aero-Medical Laboratory at Wright Field has completed extensive experimentation which indicates the pulses to be entirely harmless.

The experiments were conducted by Lt. Col. Richard Follis, who exposed 13 male guinea pigs to radar pulses three hours daily for approximately seven weeks. At the end of this time, they were killed and their vital organs studied. No deviation from the normal was found. There was no loss of hair, and no evidence of sterility. It was also proved that no X-ray waves, which might have been harmful, were mixed with the radar pulses.

AAA-Guided Missile Center

Establishment of the Antiaircraft Artillery and Guided Missile Center at Fort Bliss, Tex., was announced 8 July by General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces.

Maj. Gen. John L. Homer, now Deputy Commander of the Panama Canal Department, was named as Commanding General of the Center. General Homer is returning at once to assume his new duties.

The Center is being established in order to coordinate all antiaircraft artillery and guided missile activities of the Army Ground Forces and to promote their development, General Devers said. Plans call for extensive development and practical tests and demonstrations in the guided missile field, with special reference to their related use as artillery weapons. One of the steps is the development of tactics, techniques and organizations of guided missile units for use in the Army Ground Forces.

General Homer, an outstanding officer with a long career in antiaircraft, will be in charge of the following elements which now compose the Center: Antiaircraft Artillery School, Antiaircraft Replacement Training Center, Army Ground Forces Board No. 4, which will handle antiaircraft and guided missile matters; 1st Antiaircraft Guided Missile Battalion, now at White Sands, New Mexico; general reserve troop units at Fort Bliss as well as the post at Fort Bliss. The newly-created AGF Board No. 4, of which General Homer will be president, will take over the functions formerly assigned to the AA Service Test Section of AGF Board No. 1.

YOUR SHOES LOOK BETTER WITH

DYANSHINE

Liquid Shoe Polish

Liquid Dyanshine is the answer to a G. I.'s prayer for a sure-fire method to keep shoes looking their best... a quick, easy way to brilliant, longer-lasting shines. In a jiffy, Dyanshine adds color to scuffs and scratches. Dyanshine keeps shoes pliable and comfortable, too... because it replaces normal leather oils. A scarcity of imported ingredients that give Dyanshine its extra quality means that the supply is limited... so you'll want to follow the directions on the bottle, which makes it go farther.

IT'S TOPS AMONG PASTE SHOE POLISHES!

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The convocation by France on 29 July of the twenty-one nations which fought the Axis Powers will give the smaller allies an opportunity to express their views on the agreements which the Big Four have reached in their Paris Conference.

Whatever recommendations those allies may make will not be binding upon the great Powers, but they will have a moral influence which it will be difficult for them to disregard. That in the discussions to occur there will be criticism of the Big Four agreements is certain. It will be pointed out that the Baltic States of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, have disappeared into the maw of the Soviet Union, that Russia continues dominant in Finland and the Balkan States, that the Italian peace treaty contains provisions dangerous to European peace and stability, that the French plan for the internationalization of Trieste inevitably will produce Italian and Yugo-Slavian resentment and encourage Soviet activity in this so-called free territory, that the postponement of the disposition of Italian colonies will continue the friction between the Big Four, and that the relations of France and Italy will be constantly embarrassed by the cession of Briga and Tenda, which have no strategic value, but have plants the power of which Italian industry must purchase from France if they are to operate.

One advantage Britain derives from the internationalization of Trieste is that a further step has been taken toward protecting her Mediterranean life line, the prior step being the agreement to cede the Dodecanese Islands to Greece. The exclusion of Russia from the African colonies of Italy is yet to be accomplished, though this seems to be in prospect, and also to be solved is the question of the relations of the Soviet and British Governments in the Near and Middle East. However, the twenty-one nations will be limited by the French call to the agreements which have been made, and it will be only when the Big Four reach other agreements that they will be convoked again and their opinions then invited.

Still to be determined is the major problem of the peace, the fate of Germany. The discussions which have been occurring at the Paris Conference indicate there are points of agreement that lend hope for a solution. To effect this aim, it will be necessary for each of the Big Four to make important concessions. At the present time, Russia, which knows precisely what she wants and is truculently pressing for it, is finding the western nations differing in their policies. The United States is favoring limitation upon civilian production in Germany. Great Britain wishes to continue domination of Northwestern Germany which she is occupying. France is demanding that the Ruhr, the Rhineland and the Saar Basin, be separated from the Reich. Molotov has declared for a centralized German administration as a step toward a government with which a treaty of peace can be made. He wants Germany denazified, all cartels, trusts and syndicates be liquidated, and that Russia receive $10 billion as reparations. In the course of a bitter criticism of the Western Powers, Molotov denounced the recent order of Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, American Deputy Administrative Governor in Germany for suspending reparation deliveries from the American zone pending a decision on exports. Plainly under instructions from Secretary Byrnes, General McNarney, U. S. Theater Commander, served public notice that the U. S. would seek special agreements for the American occupation zone unless the Big Four agreed to wipe out zonal trade barriers, which of course is essential for German economic centralization. General McNarney further stated that our objectives for Germany include freedom of the press and radio from governmental domination. He predicted that our occupation in Germany would last from 10 to 15 years.

The high-handed procedure of Russia in all of Europe was further evidenced this week by her action in deporting native Germans and other non-Austrians from the Soviet zone and in assuming ownership of disputed "German assets" in that zone. In transferring the property to Russia without the consent of her war allies, Moscow has pursued the same policy it has applied in the territories it occupies both in Europe and Manchuria. Taking note of this action, through General Mark W. Clark, we have declared we will not recognize the transfer of properties falling into the category of forced transfers, forbidden by the London Conference of 1943, and proposed to turn over to the Austrian government as trustee all German assets now physically located in the American zone. The British government has supported the American position. Obviously the Stalin government is moving to get all it can in the way of industrial and monetary indemnities without prior consultation with the Western nations, and while there is understanding of its needs and that due it are reparations for the terrible losses the country sustained during the war, yet there is such a thing as a solution of this problem through Big Four negotiations. It is clear that Russian policy is first to seize and then negotiate and that is a procedure the United States will not recognize as valid.

The truce General Marshall arranged in China again has been broken, but he is continuing his negotiations with both factions in the hope that eventually an adjustment will be brought about which will enable some kind of unity. The Washington administration is beginning to use its power to compel acceptance of General Marshall's advice. Officially because of the inability of the Chinese government to transport relief goods to needy areas, UNRRA Director General La Guardia has stopped the shipment of all such goods, except vital foods, to that Far Eastern country. The UNRRA program for China amounts to about $6 billions, and in the Chinese view La Guardia's action means that the major portion of it will be stopped. That this move will reinforce General Marshall's representation is the belief that exists in Washington, but if it proves inadequate, other kinds of pressure will be exerted.

Medical Department—Three more Army general hospitals will close 30 Sept. Declared surplus to the needs of Army Medical Department on that date by Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, were Cushing General Hospital, Framingham, Mass.; Mayo General Hospital, Galesburg, Ill., and O'Reilly General Hospital, Springfield, Mo. With their closing, 19 of the 65 general hospitals operating during the war will remain.

Because of diminishing patient loads, 11 general hospitals ceased operation 30 June. During the past three months 13 general hospitals were declared surplus and all but one of 13 convalescent hospitals established during World War II were discontinued. Old Farms Convalescent Hospital in Avon, Conn., which is maintained for blind patients only, is still in operation.

Replacing convalescent hospitals as separate entities, general hospitals in the United States will operate convalescent annexes. Convalescent hospitals at Brooke General Hospital, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Madigan General Hospital, Tacoma, Wash., and Percy Jones General Hospital, Battle Creek, Mich., are continuing as convalescent annexes to general hospitals located there.

Appointment of 58 prominent civilian surgeons and 16 leading civilian physicians as consultants to the Secretary of War through The Surgeon General was announced this week. The surgeons and physicians, all of whom are specialists in their respective fields, are for the most part former Medical Corps officers who served with distinction during the war. Located strategically throughout the country, they were appointed as part of the Army Medical Department's program to maintain the highest possible standards of medical practice. Their aim will be to evaluate, promote and improve, wherever possible, the quality of the medical care given the American soldier.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, The Surgeon General, under whose direction the armed services' medical consultant program was initiated during the war, termed the selections an important step in the advancement of military medicine. As the Army enlarges its program, more specialists will be named to consultant rosters in surgery, medicine and neuropsychiatry.

Sea Services—Regular Navy enlistments and re-enlistments 21-30 June were as follows: 11,746 first enlistments in the Regular Navy at recruiting stations, 552 first enlistments outside the United States, 102 changeovers to USN from USNR and USN-I, and 906 re-enlistments and extensions. Enlistments in the Naval Reserve V-6, which is open only to discharged veterans, have totalled 59,582 since October 1945.

Army Chaplains Corps—Chaplain (Capt.) Peter N. Holmes who entered the service from Bloomington, Wisc., has been on duty for the past week in the Office of the Chief of Chaplains, Technical Information Division. Chaplain Holmes is en route to Germany for duty.

Chaplain (Maj.) Matthew H. Imrie has reported for duty in the Office of the Chief of Chaplains. He has been assigned, Officer-in-Charge, Technical Information Division, relieving Chaplain (Col.) Harry C. Fraser, now en route to Japan for duty. Chaplain Imrie is an Episcopalian.

Chaplain (Col.) Ivan L. Bennett was an office visitor 7 July. Chaplain Bennett has had a most interesting tour of duty having been stationed at points overseas since May 1942. His assignments have included: Headquarters USAFIA: Theater Chaplain, Southwest Pacific Area; Headquarters USAFFE and General Headquarters AFPAC. Chaplain Bennett has been highly commended and has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal in recognition of his exceptional meritorious and distinguished service.

Recent visitors to the Office of the Chief of Chaplains were: Chaplain (Capt.) John L. Reeves, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.; Chaplain (Capt.) Ray L. Allen, Hqs. Second Army, Baltimore, Md.; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Edward J. Burns, Halloran General Hospital, Staten Island, N. Y.; Chaplain (Capt.) John P. Brown, Hqs. China Service Command, Shanghai; Chaplain (Col.) Ivan L. Bennett, unassigned; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Wayne M. Daubenspeck, WDPC, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Boleslaus J. Stawowy, Hqs. 6th Inf. Div., Korea; and Chaplain (Maj.) Charles F. Steck, Jr., terminal leave, Waynesboro, Va.

Marine Corps—With the return of the famed Second Division to the United States, its commanding officer, Maj. Gen. LeRoy P. Hunt, will report later this Summer as Commanding General of the Troop Training Unit, Training Command, Pacific Fleet Amphibious Forces, with headquarters at Camp Matthews, Calif. General Hunt is to succeed Maj. Gen. Harry K. Pickett, who retired recently.

This is one of three major changes of command in the San Diego area. Brig. Gen. L. D. Hermle, until recently military governor of Guam, is to report later this month as commanding officer of the Marine Base there. At the Marine Air Station, Miramar, Calif., Col. David F. O'Neill took command on 25 June, succeeding Col. Harold C. Major.

General Pickett is scheduled for retirement 1 November after more than 33 years of service. General Hermle was relieved by Rear Admiral Charles A. Pownall on 30 May, when the Navy's military government of Guam was re-established. Colonel O'Neill, the new air station commander, was a star athlete at Annapolis in the 1920s and was in the Second Division in this war.

Lt. Col. Jack Hawkins, who became a prisoner of the Japanese with the fall of Corregidor, has been named to organize and train a corps of Marines for the Republic of Venezuela. He was to sail this week with his family for South America.

Discharges "for convenience of the government to accept permanent appointment to officer rank in the Regular Marine Corps" has been authorized for all present temporary officers whose permanent status is that of enlisted men in the Marine Corps or Marine Corps Reserve.

These personnel will be discharged on the same date as temporary appointments are terminated and will be given pay and allowances as temporary officers to include their date of discharge. If not previously paid mustering out pay, they will be entitled to it on the date they are separated to accept permanent appointments.

Signal Corps—The War Department Sub-Signal Center in the Munitions Building has been discontinued and its personnel, equipment and records have been transferred to the War Department Signal Center, The Pentagon.

So that engineers within the different services may be familiar with projects undertaken in other services, a series of technical conferences has been initiated by the Signal Corps. The first of these conferences was held recently at the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories and was attended by representatives of the Navy and the Army Air Forces. Other meetings will be held at the Navy Department laboratories, and at Wright Field. The general purpose of the conference is to provide for a free interchange of technical information.

Brig. Gen. George I. Back, Chief, Army Communications Service, was the principal speaker at an Independence Day celebration at Ripley, West Virginia. Invited by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, Jackson County veterans of World War II were guests of honor.

Carroll O. Bickelhaupt, Vice President and Secretary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and a former brigadier general, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for services in the European Theater from December, 1944, to July, 1945.

Naval Academy—Summer cruises were re-instituted at the U. S. Naval Academy this week as 440 second classmen inaugurated aviation instruction at Annapolis and first- and third-classmen embarked on the first post-war cruise for Midshipmen.

Half of the second class group sailed for the Atlantic on the USS Randolph, a carrier of the Essex class, while another half started aviation training at the Academy's air facility on the north shore of the Severn River for a five weeks' period after which the groups will exchange places.

The aviation curriculum this Summer will be the equivalent of a year's work in an academic subject, Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch, superintendent, pointed out. The program at Annapolis is headed by Capt. Robert B. Pirie, head of the newly-formed aviation department, with the assistance of his executive officer, Capt. C. L. Westhofen.

Courses in the new program include gunnery and bombing, including the research, development and use of new weapons; aerodynamics, engineering and structures; electronics, including the use and importance of radio, radar and other electronic aids now being developed; light observation, including observation and the aerial application of navigation; tactics, including the joint use of navigation, communication and aerological facilities.

The carrier phase includes the handling of electronic equipment aboard ships, the functions of the fighter-director or the combat-information-center; tactics, including the support of aircraft and coordination of air and surface units in amphibious operations.

In addition, the Midshipmen will take 16 hours of dual flight instruction. Ten hours will be offered at Annapolis and six hours from the decks of the Randolph.

The battleships Washington and North Carolina are the training ships for the summer cruises, on which Midshipmen will stand parallel watches and be assigned special duties. The cruise will include firing at Culebra, Cuba.

Finance Department—Col. E. M. Foster, Assistant Chief of Finance, returned from temporary duty at the Army Finance Center, OCF, Building 204, 4300 Goodfellow Boulevard, St. Louis 20, Mo. He conferred with Col. W. T. Johnson, Director of the Army Finance Center, and members of his staff on auditing procedures and related finance matters.

Col. John L. Scott, FD, was relieved from duty with Headquarters Fifth Army, Chicago, and assigned to Finance Office, U. S. Army, Chicago, Ill.

Maj. William R. Hickman, Executive Officer, Industrial College for the Armed Forces since 1 July 1944 will be transferred to Office of the Chief of Finance effective 1 Aug. Prior to his assignment with the Industrial College, Major Hickman was a member of the Staff and Faculty of the Army Finance School. Col. E. J. Bean, present Chief of Administrative Management Division, OCF, was Commandant of the Army Finance School at the time.

Lt. Col. Thomas H. Upton, FD, was recently awarded the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services from September 1940 to September 1945.

Lt. Col. Leon B. Moye, FD, was relieved from Finance Department Replacement Pool, Finance Training Center, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. and assigned to Second Army, Fort Benjamin Harrison. Previously, Col. Moye was Finance Officer, 36th Infantry Division.

Ordnance Department—Brig. Gen. Donald Armstrong, recently head of the Army Industrial College, will retire from active duty in the grade of colonel effective 21 October.

Col. William F. Meany has been designated Commanding Officer of Benecia Arsenal, Calif., vice Col. Paul G. Rutten, transferred to WAA.

Maj. Andrew J. Hickey has been reassigned from the Ordnance School Pool, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., to Red River Arsenal, Texarkana, Tex.

Col. Stephen J. Millet has been relieved from duty as AGF member of the Ordnance Board at Aberdeen Proving Ground and assigned to duty as Ordnance Officer at Mt. Rainier Ordnance Depot, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Col. William J. Henry has been awarded the Legion of Merit for his services, April 1942 to June 1944.

Navy Nurse Corps—Lt. Comdr. Sally L. Vestal (NC), USN, leaves the Naval Hospital at Philadelphia to take up duty as Chief Nurse of the Hospital in Parris Island, S. C.

Lt. Comdr. Manila D. Barber (NC), USN, goes to the Naval Hospital at San Diego, Calif., as assistant chief nurse, leaving the hospital at Parris Island, S. C.

Lt. Comdr. Catherine Richardson, (NC), USN, leaves the hospital at Camp Peary, Williamsburg, Va., to take up duty at the hospital at Mare Island, Calif.

Transportation Corps—After final inspection and approval by Brig. Gen. Neal H. McKay, Port Commander, and an expert staff including Col. Calvin DeWitt, formerly Acting Port Commander, and Capt. Albert Berry, USNR, Marine Superintendent, the U. S. Army Transport "General D. E. Aultman" sailed from the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, 5 July, for Hawaii on her maiden run under the red and gold colors of the Transportation Corps.

In a brief ceremony at Fort Mason piers, "General Aultman" was converted under S.F.P.E. contract at Kaiser Shipyards, Richmond, Calif. She is the first of the Port's dozen former Navy troopships to return to sea service.

The conversion to Army style involved halving of the accommodations, the new normal capacities being First Class: 96; Second Class: 40, unaccompanied male passengers: 150; Troops: 2,033.

Provision for fewer passengers, plus elimination of torpedo dangers, permitted removal of thirty-six life rafts from the ship's main deck and results in large clear areas for promenade. A portion of this space, especially fenced, is available for play area for junior passengers.

Gun tubs, where lookouts and marksmen stood wartime watches beside surface and anti-aircraft weapons, have been retained, minus their artillery, to provide added deck area for the passengers.

Newly installed hospital, post exchange and lounges feature the converted ship, though it was emphasized that no effort has been made to compete with civilian-operated passenger liners.

Quartermaster Corps—A trip through any soldiers' mess will show that Army food in the Pacific has improved steadily since the end of the war, Brig. Gen. W. F. Campbell, chief quartermaster, AFPAC, stated recently. In combat days, getting eight eggs and six servings of fresh meat per man per month was considered comparatively good eating, the chief quartermaster said. Since the end of combat, supplies have improved until now fresh meats are being served nearly every day, and each soldier has a ration of more than 30 eggs a month, General Campbell said. Fresh fruits and vegetables are served to the greatest extent possible consistent with perishability of the various items.

The 25th Quartermaster company of the 25th division has been awarded the meritorious service unit plaque at Alaska recently by Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, Jr., division commander.

The company was cited for its work in November and December, 1945, when it was engaged in the unloading and distribution of supplies of all classes and the distribution of food to approximately 50,000 troops, some of them located as far as 200 miles from the supply base.

"I'm Sure I Lost It Right About Here"

Tsh, mister! Don't lose that genuine ZIPPO Windproof LIGHTER—it's still a scarce item. And losing it is the one thing we can't guarantee it against. We do guarantee that it will light any time, anywhere—that it has about the biggest, longest lasting fuel supply—no evaporation when closed—that the genuine asbestosized wick will last for years—that the exclusive hinge-lever means a tight closing, strong assembly—and that No One Ever Paid a Cent to Repair a ZIPPO.

The Curtiss SC-1 Seahawk with a WRIGHT CYCLONE 9

First scout plane able to hold its own with enemy fighters, the Curtiss Seahawk was in for the kill in the Pacific. The Seahawk's decided edge over earlier naval observation types in speed, climb and range is due largely to the high power output at a low weight ratio of its Wright Cyclone 9.

WEST POINT, N. Y.

The U. S. Military Academy's rugged 14,000 acre summer training area at Lake Popolopen was officially named "Camp Buckner" today in honor of the late Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., a graduate of the Class of 1908 and former West Point Commandant of Cadets, who was killed in action while leading his Tenth Army in battle against the Japanese on Okinawa on 18 June 1945.

The late General's wife and daughter Mary, Admiral of the Fleet Chester W. Nimitz, Admirals T. C. Kinkaid and Kelly Turner, General Courtney H. Hodges, and the Corps of Cadets were among the throng that clustered about the rocky ledge, on which is mounted the bronze, shield-type memorial plaque, as Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Superintendent, gave the dedicatory address. Stressing General Buckner's outstanding military feats in World War II, General Taylor recalled: "General Buckner always gave personal leadership to his troops on the battlefield and was often found in the front lines. It was in the course of such a visit to the front on 18 June 1945 that he was killed in action."

To the Corps of Cadets, the Superintendent commented: "As you pass this rough-hewn rock, I would ask you to reflect upon the rugged man for whom it stands. . . This rock should serve to remind you of his life of service and inspire you to develop the same qualities of strong leadership which characterized General Buckner."

The plaque bears the following inscription: "Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., DSC: DSM (Navy), Graduate USMA, 1908. As an instructor in tactics at USMA from 1919 to 1921, and as Commandant of Cadets from 1933 to 1936, he trained and impressed his sterling leadership on hundreds of cadets who later served their country well in World War II. He was killed in action leading his Army on Okinawa on 18 June 1945."

The Cadet Choir sang "The Corps," one of the Academy's revered hymns, while the West Point band played a medley march of patriotic tunes.

ANNAPOLIS, MD.

FT. RICHARDSON, ALASKA

2 July 1946

The Officers' Wives Club held a reception on Thursday afternoon, 27 June, for Mrs. Joseph H. Atkinson, wife of Brigadier General Atkinson, who has recently assumed command of Ft. Richardson. An attendance of more than 100 was reported. Mrs. Raymond P. Sharood was in charge of all arrangements and acted as hostess. She was assisted by Mesdames Harry W. Stephenson, William W. Young, Frank Walsh, and Raymond E. Hogan. Mrs. Atkinson was asked to serve as honorary president of the club and accepted the position.

On Thursday evening, 27 June, Capt. and Mrs. William Hyslop entertained with an outdoor dinner at Green Lake. Guests included Capt. and Mrs. Gaillard Barry, Mrs. R. E. Rice, mother of Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Ed. Smalley, and Capt. Ralph Kann.

This week 31 officers of the Army of the United States still on duty in the Alaskan Department were notified that they had been nominated for commissions in the Regular Army as a result of last spring's examinations. One former officer, Dr. William B. Snodgrass, who is practicing veterinary medicine at Palmer and Anchorage and who prior to separation was serving as veterinarian of the Alaskan Department with the rank of major, also received notice that he had been tendered an appointment as a captain in the Regular Army.

Excavation for the foundation of the new Alaskan Department Headquarters building, which will cost approximately $1,062,000, has been completed and the pouring of concrete was started on Tuesday morning, 2 July. Contract specifications call for the completion of the new building early next Spring.

Mrs. Reid is the daughter of Col. O. C. Schwalm, veterinary corps, and Mrs. Schwalm.

Weddings and Engagements

Lt. William R. Smith of Chevy Chase, Maryland.

The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride, 204 Witherspoon Road.

After a short honeymoon, Lt. and Mrs. Walsh will depart for Phoenix, Ariz., where Lt. Walsh will serve with the Army Air Forces. The bridegroom was a member of this year's graduation class of the U. S. Military Academy.

Miss Margaret Hansen, daughter of Maj. Otto Hansen, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Hansen, and Clement Ammann, recently discharged from AUS in the rank of captain, were married in Old St. Mary's Church, San Francisco, on 15 June. The bride's father was one of the first warrant officers appointed at the time that classification was set up. For 18 years before the war he was stationed at Fort Mason, where the bride was reared and where she was employed during the war period. The bridegroom is a former resident of St. Louis, Mo., and was in the Adjutant General's Department during the war.

The Fort Sam Houston Chapel was recently the scene of the marriage of Miss Jane Eastwood, daughter of Col. Clifford Arthur Eastwood, (Ret.), and Mrs. Eastwood, and Major Forrest Rutherford Harsh, AAC, son of Mrs. Rosamond Harsh of Denver, and the late Col. F. R. Harsh, with Chaplain John E. Kenney officiating.

The bridal gown was of lace and slipper satin, torso-length bodice and bouffant skirt extending into a train. Her tiered veil of illusion was held by a coronet of lace and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids, iris and stephanotis.

Mrs. Roy Wilson was matron of honor and the best man was Col. Thomas E. Ligon, with Maj. William E. Ruark, Capt. Luther E. Dooley and Messrs. Edwin T. Jarmon and Robert P. Cotter acting as ushers.

A reception was held at the Officers' Club with Mesdames Oswaldo de la Rosa, Thomas Howard and Hugh Hoffman and the Misses Pat Sill and Betty Gilliam assisting.

The couple will make their home in San Antonio.

Miss Verna Eloine Perry, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Clifford Henry Perry of Bradenton, Fla., became the bride of Mr. William J. Siersma, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Siersma of Palma Sola Park, Wednesday, 26 June.

The Rev. A. R. E. Garrett, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, which was beautifully decorated with white flowers against palms and lighted by candles, performed the ceremony.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white mousseline de soie and lace—a fitted bodice with full skirt and long train trimmed with entre deux of lace. Her flowers were white roses, stephanotis and orchids.

Mrs. Katherine Kermode of Palmetto was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Bradley, Persis B. Tichenor, Pauline Kamberis, and Peggy Groneweg. Little Miss Kannie Jane Kermode was flower girl and Master Fred Kermode, ring bearer. The best man was Mr. George Kermode. A reception was held at the bride's home. The bride is a native of West Point, N. Y. She attended George Washington University and Washington College of Music. She is a graduate of the New York School of Interior Decoration. Mrs. Siersma is a daughter of the United States Army and a member of the Bradenton Woman's Club and Camaraderie Chapter. Mr. Siersma, a native of Chicago, attended Central Y. M. C. A., Gregg Business College and Watson Business College. He is a member of the American Legion.

They will make their home at 1912 Seventh Ave., W., Bradenton.

Col. Harry N. Rising, Ord. Dept., USA, and Mrs. Rising of Washington, D. C., and Hammondsport, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Lyon Rising, to Maj. Merle Landry Carey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Carey of Marlborough, Mass.

Miss Rising is a graduate of the National Cathedral School, Washington, D. C., and Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Major Carey was graduated from the United States Military Academy, class of 1943. He is also a graduate of Boston College. At present Major Carey is on duty with the 3rd U. S. Infantry Division in Germany. The wedding will take place in the Fall.

At a cocktail party at the Officers' Club, Governors Island, N. Y., Col. Jay D. B. Lattin, Sig. C, USA, and Mrs. Lattin announced the engagement of their daughter Elizabeth Billings to David Day Makel, son of Col. H. P. Makel, MC, USA, and Mrs. Makel of Moorestown, N. J. Miss Lattin is a graduate of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. Mr. Makel recently was released from active duty by the Navy after serving aboard a landing ship in the Pacific as Gunnery Officer and first lieutenant.

Miss Hazel Ferguson, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lawrence John Ferguson of Fort McClellan, Ala., and Mr. Maurice Joseph Flynn, son of Mrs. Maurice S.

Flynn and the late Mr. Flynn of Huntington, W. Va., were married 9 June at the rectory of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Huntington. The Rev. Sylvester S. Stroud performed the ceremony before an altar of palms and ferns in the presence of the families and close friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin and tulle made with a fitted bodice, and a sweeping train. Her full-length illusion veil fell from a cap of white satin with a cluster of fresh flowers at each side. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, gardenias and stephanotis.

Mrs. James Oliver Porter (Jane Ferguson), sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mr. Dave Leasure of Huntington served as best man.

A reception at the Huntington Woman's Club for 300 guests followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Flynn is a graduate of Clinton High School, Clinton, S. C. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Marshall College in 1944, and her Master of Arts degree in 1945. She is a member and past officer of Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority, and is currently a teacher in the Huntington public schools. Mr. Flynn was graduated from St. Joseph's High School and was a student at Marshall College at the time of his entering the Armed Forces in 1943. He is again a student at the same college in Pre-Law studies, is currently the president of the local chapter of Phi Tau Alpha Fraternity, and a member of the Inter-Fraternity Council. During the emergency he was a sergeant in the Infantry Branch, USA, and was on active duty with the Third and First Armies, European Theater of Operations, for approximately a year. He was awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge in action, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, American Theater and European Theater ribbons with two battle stars, and Victory Medal.

Miss Anne Watson Brown, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Thomas W. Brown of Carmel, Calif., was married at 4 o'clock the afternoon of 14 June at the Church of the Wayfarer to Mr. Weldon Collins Butter. Dr. James E. Crowther performed the ceremony before an altar banked with masses of white gladioli and lighted by tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked particularly lovely in a traditional wedding gown of white satin with a long, sweeping train and form-fitting bodice trimmed in seed pearls and silver. Heirloom lace fashioned a coronet which held the flowing veil, and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

There were three attendants — Mary Williams, Charlene Raney and Cynthia Seaborn.

George E. Turner, jr., of Redlands, a cousin of the bride, served as best man. The ushers were Tom Fox, jr., of Palo Alto, another cousin, and William Cranston, of Carmel.

Among out-of-town guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Tom Fox of Palo Alto, Mrs. Brown's sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. George E. Turner of Redlands, Col. Brown's sister, and Lt. Col. Robert C. McDonald, jr., from Cal-Tech, Pasadena, and Midshipman Stanton B. Garner of Annapolis, both cousins of the bride.

The young couple will be at-home in Carmel, Ill., where Mr. Butter is with the Standard Oil Company, after a honeymoon in the Yosemite.

The bride comes of two Army families, being the granddaughter of the late Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Lucien G. Berry, and of the late Col. and Mrs. Edward T. Brown.

Mr. Butter is a graduate of Texas A. & M. in the class of 1936 and served as a Reserve officer, both overseas and in the United States. His last assignment was with the American Military Government in Korea.

Miss Virginia Inness-Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Alwyn Inness-Brown, was married to Ensign Robert Henry Conn, USNR, of Barin Field, Pensacola, Fla., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hammond Conn of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Treasure Island, East Boothby, Me., 6 July.

The five-thirty ceremony was held at Christ Church, Pensacola, with the Reverend Henry Bell Hodgkins officiating.

Mr. Inness-Brown of New York and Little River, East Boothby, Me., gave his daughter's hand in marriage and she wore a gown of ivory satin with a deep yoke of rosepoint lace belonging to her maternal grandmother. Victorian in design, the gown had a full skirt sweeping into a long train, and her veil, fingertip in length, was of point lace with tulle. She carried her grandmother's rosepoint lace fan adorned with white orchids.

Ensign Donald Gaffin, also of Barin Field, was best man.

Ensign Conn, naval aviator, attended Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Colgate University and the University of North Carolina.

Miss Inness-Brown is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Herbert Brown of Charleston, S. C., and of Mr. John Allen Royall of Boston, and the late Mrs. Royall. She is a great-grandniece of George Inness, the painter, and on her mother's side she is a direct descendant of Abraham Clark, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of Isaac Royall of Medford, Mass., a founder of the Harvard Law School. She attended Warrenton Country School and Smith College.

Obituary

IN the death of Mr. Theodore Williams Noyes in Washington, D. C., on 4 July the Armed Forces lost a firm friend and staunch supporter. As Editor of the Evening Star (Washington, D. C.), Mr. Noyes was best known for his outstanding contributions to the civic and cultural, as well as physical, growth of Washington. Yet the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard knew him for his sound editorial support of National Defense and the welfare of Service-personnel.

In the matter of National and Foreign policies, too, Mr. Noyes' sage, level-headed editorials contributed to raising The Star to the position of high respect and authority it now holds among the great papers of the Nation.

Institute. These sections correspond roughly with the courses that make up a soldier's meal. This division of the work into product sections enables each to specialize in a particular food. One product development which was popular and practical, was frozen boneless beef, and which was sent overseas for the soldier-consumer. The simple idea of removing all the bones from a side of beef, freezing it, packing it in the correct container and delivering it in a frozen state, for example to North Africa, was an outstanding accomplishment. It resulted in a saving of 40 percent in shipping space and approximately 40 percent in weight.

Proper packing and packaging of military foods is almost as important as the foods themselves, for if they do not retain their nutritional value and remain in acceptable condition until issued, they are almost a total loss. The Container Research and Development Division of the Institute is doing research to perfect a suitable container for every food item the Army procures. This work proves in advance how long and well a container will hold up and how much corrosion or rust it will withstand before a shipment is made. Thus a saving in food products and conservation of shipping space is the result, and the soldier will not reject the food because it has lost its acceptability.

These factors are determined in the laboratory by experimental tests of stress and strength, temperature and humidity, and other experiments. Operational conditions are simulated in laboratory chambers and storage and container data are compiled from the testing which is done. For example, testing chamber temperatures range from -50° F. to 150° F. at relative humidities ranging from 25 to 90 percent.

Food acceptability was finally recognized as the most important factor in troop feeding. If the soldier does not like the food he is given, he will not eat it. This fact was proved conclusively during the war when soldiers threw away certain foods they needed simply because they did not like them. An important activity at the Institute is its Food Acceptance Research Program. Before any item is approved for military use, it is subjected to taste-testing by hundreds of judges who write down their objections or approval. The questionnaires are analyzed and data compiled which gives a reliable guide to the greatest good for the greatest number. Human guinea pigs, usually the Institute staff, are required to participate in food acceptance research daily. In addition, there are a number of projects supervised by this division in the Institute and its laboratories. Certain interesting and unusual gadgets have been devised for measuring certain acceptability factors, such as the colorimeter, consistometer, jellometer, sagometer and even the schnittfestigkeit. These mechanical devices are used in conjunction with the data compiled from taste-testing to provide a basis for improvement of the taste, color, odor and utility of military foods.

Another division of the Institute is the Quartermaster Subsistence School. The school is available to officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, who become subsistence specialists. The courses include laboratory work as well as class room activities with extensive field trips to food and dairy industries in and around Chicago.

The wartime courses were set up for a term of 13 weeks but are being revised to comprise five months of training with the first term beginning 15 July, 1946. Beginning with the five months' course, a group of selected college graduates majoring in science have been selected to attend the school. After completing the five-month course in subsistence instruction, the science students will do research in the fields of physics, mathematics, chemical engineering, electrical engineering, chemistry, nutrition, physiology, psychology, bacteriology or agricultural economics.

Their program will include laboratory work at the Institute in connection with college training at Northwestern University or the University of Chicago. Under this plan it is possible to obtain a Master's degree or a Doctorate. These science students are commissioned second lieutenants with full pay and allowances and the War Department finances their school expenses.

The purpose of this training program is to augment the number of scientific personnel in the Army and to provide a group of highly skilled persons in the event of a future national emergency.

amendment Senator Walsh had the measure referred to the Military Committee which, being unable to get categorical endorsement or rejection from the War Department, asked the two secretaries to have a joint study made. As a result of that study the two Secretaries this week wrote Senator Thomas as follows:

"As requested by the Committee, representatives of the War and Navy Departments were appointed to resolve points of difference and provide a retirement basis for enlisted personnel of the Army and Navy which will be equitable and mutually agreeable."

"The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy present herewith a redraft of S. 1438, which is acceptable to the War and Navy Departments, and which embodies a retirement plan applicable to both services."

"The Navy Department has acceded to the War Department's request that provision for the reestablishment of a reserve after 10 years of service be removed, and, accordingly those portions of the Act which relate thereto have been deleted. Provision is made in the redraft to transfer to the Fleet Reserve of enlisted men who are members of the Insular Force of the Navy, and other Filipino enlisted men who are not citizens of the United States. This amendment to the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 is made necessary by the enactment of the Philippine Independence Act, the effective date of which is 4 July, 1946, under the terms of which such men thereafter will be ineligible for transfer to the Fleet Reserve. Present law permits only citizens of the United States and Insular Possessions to be members of the Naval Reserve. Other minor differences have been resolved by mutual agreement acceptable to both Departments."

"The importance of this Act to the morale of the enlisted personnel of the Armed Forces, and as an inducement for voluntary recruitment and reenlistment, particularly among the career men of the services cannot be over emphasized."

"The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy earnestly recommend that S. 1438, with changes as suggested in the accompanying redraft, be enacted at the earliest possible date."

"There has been insufficient time to obtain advice from the Bureau of the Budget as to the relationship of this report to the program of the President."

The bill as amended in the House to apply to the Army has been changed as follows by the conferring Departments: Sections 6 and 7 have been deleted. Section 8 has been renumbered section 6 and now reads as follows:

"Sec. 6(a) Section 4 of the Act approved 6 October, 1945 (Public Law 190, 79th Congress), is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 4. Whenever any enlisted man of the Regular Army shall have completed a minimum of twenty but less than 30 years of active Federal service, he may, under such regulations as the Secretary of War shall prescribe, upon his own request be transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps and thereupon will be placed on the retired list of the Regular Army. An enlisted man so transferred and retired shall receive, except when on active duty, annual pay equal to 2½ per centum of the base pay of the enlisted grade held at the time he made application for retirement multiplied by the number of years of active Federal service, not to exceed 30 years, plus all longevity pay computed in accordance with the provisions of section 3A of the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942 as amended. The pay (including longevity pay) authorized by this section shall be increased 10 per centum for any enlisted man who is credited with extraordinary heroism in line of duty."

Provisos are included that leave it to the Secretary of War to define "extraordinary heroism"; that the total pay shall not be more than 75 per cent of the sum of base, longevity and heroism pay.

Included in the legislation is the provision that active duty performed subsequent to retirement shall cause a recomputation of pay, upon re-retirement, based on the additional active-duty time and the possible higher grade attained.

In the revised bill is the provision that "any fractional part of a year amounting to six months or more shall be counted as a complete year for the purpose of computing retired pay, but shall not be computed for the purpose of determining eligibility for retirement under this section."

Because of the Philippine Islands having been given their independence, the bill as redrafted provides for the transfer to the Fleet Reserve of enlisted men of the Insular Force of the Navy, and other non-U. S. citizens among Filipino enlisted men.

An additional proviso tacked on to section 204 of the bill is as follows: "And provided further: That the provisions of this section shall apply to all persons of the class described herein, heretofore or hereafter transferred to the Fleet Reserve, except that no increase in pay or allowances shall be deemed to have accrued prior to the date of the enactment of this amendment."

Results of Test Able

Bikini Atoll—Examination of the vessels in the target fleet, now that their store of bomb-created radioactivity is reduced to harmless proportions, reveals in general what was expected to result from the bomb's explosion in mid-air, as distinguished from under water. That is, the damage above decks was very great within a range of 1,000 yards, and at a much further distance the fury of the heat blast, fleeting as it was, ignited inflammable materials so as to cause secondary fires which (with no fire control personnel aboard) caused further damage; the injury from alpha and beta particles and gamma rays, to all personnel in an exposed position would have been tremendous.

The damage to hulls was extremely light, save in a relatively small radius. Although the Nevada was the target bull's eye, the blast clearly took place at a point some distance astern, as indicated by the scorching of her after-surfaces and by the injuries to the sterns of Independence and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, the former showing a deep indentation in the port counter, the latter receiving such injuries astern that she sank before she could be hauled to the beach. Those vessels were moored on Nevada's starboard and port quarters. The impressive thing is that Nevada herself fared well so far as hull is concerned, and not too badly above decks, several of her experimental livestock surviving the initial blast and looking quite healthy when the boarding parties arrived.

In the inner circle were also anchored our destroyers Anderson (sunk) Lamson (capsized and later sunk) attack transports Gilliam and Carlisle (both sunk) and submarine Skate (heeled over and beached to prevent sinking). For their hulls, at such close range, the blast was too great to take. Yet Independence's sturdy carrier-hull took the blow referred to without opening a seam. Above decks she is almost a total loss, for her flight deck is heaved and buckled, her hanger deck's sides blown away, her island knocked down to a stump, her interior gutted. The bomb's blast was certainly responsible for a large part of the damage, for the iron uprights themselves, which supported the flight deck, are badly bent inward from the direction of the blast and quite probably the island's destruction was started by the same cause. Yet it was unmistakably the secondary fires of fuel and ammunition which did the most spectacular damage, for even as the observers' ships pulled back from their distant observation area into the lagoon, Independence was the center of attention, as succession of fireballs bursting from within and adding to the fire which raged unchecked for hours, after all that, the hull was intact, and there was no danger of sinking.

It is possible, one must note, that some of the actual sinkings were the result of secondary explosions, rather than of the initial blast. On many vessels were bombs, up to a ton's weight; did the explosion of one such bomb eliminate one of the lost vessels? That will be known only when the underwater divers' reports, with photographs, disclose the facts, and that examination is not made at the time of writing; it is not planned to raise any of the vessels.

At the same time, as Admiral Blandy has remarked, there is not the faintest doubt that explosion of a bomb of this nature directly over a warship and at less than, say, 200 feet elevation, will inevitably sink the vessel, be she destroyer or battleship. It is well to have that clear, and to have it known that it is universally recognized by everyone competent to have an opinion. These tests were not, most emphatically not, designed as a circus competition between bomb and battleship, but as a most methodical and searching means of getting information on what the bomb would and would not do against all types of ship at distances ranging from close, meaning destruction, to remote, meaning security.

How well this objective was attained Admiral Blandy himself noted, with his gift for clear and direct statement—as a result of Test Able, there was an extraordinarily successful score. Note that among the several ships sunk or completely disabled were included 1 battleship, 1 aircraft carrier, 1 heavy cruiser, 1 light cruiser, 1 destroyer, 1 transport, 1 submarine, 1 landing ship (with duplications ignored). That is about as complete as one could ask. Also, at the other end of the line was a listing almost as inclusive for the vessels escaping any important damage altogether. Also a fair grading between those extremes.

Thus far the discussion has been of the damage to ships. It should be noted that there was a fairly satisfactory result from the test of damage to equipment placed on the decks for testing, although it was severely limited by the fact that in many cases airplane wings and quarter-master supplies, among other things, were burned so completely that they left no trace to show what were the effects of radiation. Ground forces' heavy equipment (tanks and guns) stood the test admirably, in the judgment of Maj. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe.

The third element, and in some respects the most important, was the test of what would have been the effect upon personnel. Certain broad conclusions leap from the record, notably that as regards the personnel on all those ships which received heavy damage, every man in an exposed position, or almost every man, would have been killed. Were it a surprise attack, (when ships were not secured, that is) the loss of life and particularly of bridge personnel, would have been crippling. It is best to wait a bit before stating what would have happened to personnel in protected positions below decks on those same ships, and to personnel generally on ships which received less damage. Guidance on this will come from examination of the health charts of the animals placed on 22 of the target ships for the very purpose of determining what would have happened to men. Of the pigs and goats recovered at all, 90 per cent survived the first blast, but many show bad symptoms and doubtless will die shortly, as humans did after Hiroshima. The lessons on this are too large either to ignore or to draw too quickly.

Merger Hearings

That the criticisms of the Navy Department to the merger bill S. 2044, which supposedly has reflected the President's ultimatum on the subject, are about ready for presentation to the President, was stated this week by Senator Walsh, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. The letter that will go to the President will be drafted by Assistant Secretary of the Navy W. John Kenney.

During the present week, hearings held in executive session have brought before the Senate Naval Committee Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, President of the Naval War College, Admiral Richard K. Turner, Naval Representative on the Military Staff Committee of the Security Council of the United Nations, Admiral John H. Towers, Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific Fleet, and Admiral Thomas Kinkaid, commanding the Eastern Sea Frontier.

As reported by Senator Walsh, all of these witnesses have registered their opposition to placing the land-based air force of the Navy under Army domination and their desire to have amphibious operations kept by the Navy and the Marines to be kept an integral part of the Navy.

According to the same witnesses, the bill is too general in its application to the Navy, and their opinion is that the bill should define more clearly the powers and functions of the Navy.

Also stated by Senator Walsh was his expectation that the same witnesses will appear again before the committee to consider the testimony they have given and ready it, possibly, for release.

The Senate-approved plan to raise the price of silver to 90.3 cents an ounce was rejected 10 July by the House, 286 to 23, the House standing firm on its proposal that the Treasury buy and sell silver at 71.11 cents an ounce.

An annual sales rate of $1 billion for the General Electric Co. was predicted by Charles E. Wilson, president of the company, at the annual stockholders meeting this week. The company has arranged a $100 million line of credit as a safeguard, although the company thus far has not needed to borrow.

A recent report of the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration shows that mortgage financing activity continued to rise in May, the monthly volume of lending being almost double that of May 1945.

Most New York City commercial banks started business for the third quarter of the year with a smaller volume of available funds for lending and investing than held at the beginning of the year. Deposits also in most cases were less than those at the end of June 1945.

The Office of the Foreign Liquidation Commissioner has announced that nearly $2 billion in surplus United States war stocks in Europe have been sold or committed. This leaves less than one-half of the original stockpile in Europe. Of the total $3,111,507,000 in supplies declared surplus, sales, contracts and transfers to Great Britain and France have accounted for the disposal of $1,880,000,000 worth, the announcement stated.

Holders of Electric Boat Co. common stock of record 1 July are receiving a dividend in the form of one share of cumulative convertible preferred stock for each four shares of common stock held. At the stated value of $50 a share for the preferred stock, the dividend amounts to approximately $8,700,000, and goes to 5,000 holders of common stock.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

The stern of a wrecked tanker, containing a 6,000-horsepower steam turbine generating plant, has been turned over to the city of Anchorage, Alaska, as a source of emergency electric power until the city can obtain permanent facilities.

The transfer was made by the Maritime Commission at the request of Delegate E. L. Bartlett of Alaska, who had asked that the aft end of the SS Hackett's Harbor be made available for this purpose rather than permit her deterioration at her berth at Adak.

The tanker remnant was ruled surplus, and the request was granted. A War Shipping Administration tug then towed the floating power plant to her dry land job at Anchorage.

The Hackett's Harbor broke in two in heavy weather on 1 March, 1946. Her master and nine crew members made their way to the USS Orlando (PF-99), and later re-boarded the stern end to head it toward port. A Navy tug, USS Sarsi (ATF-111), arrived to tow her to Adak. In the meantime, other Navy ships sank the bow section by gunfire as a menace to navigation.

Use of the wrecked tanker, originally of 16,000 tons, for ship-to-shore power supply recalls two previous occasions when Navy ships supplied electricity for cities. The USS Lexington supplied the city of Tacoma, Wash., in 1929, and the USS Donnell, a destroyer escort, supplied Cherbourg, France, in August 1944.

Surplus Ship Sales

International demand for purchase or charter of war-built American merchant ships grew to a total of 1,246 vessels during the second preference period under the Ship Sales Act of 1946 which ended 30 June, representing an increase of 222 ships over the total covered by applications filed during the first period ending 31 May.

The report showed foreign applications for purchase have grown to a total of 664 from 24 nations. The largest number of applications came from China, 162. Other countries with numerous applications were France with 85, Norway 84, Panama 67, Italy 50, The Netherlands 46, and Great Britain 46.

Water vs. Rail Rates

Itemization of individual railroad freight rates and practices which the Maritime Commission and WSA contend are unfairly competitive with domestic water carrier rates has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The action is in response to a letter from ICC Chairman George Barnard stating that the request for investigation made last March did not identify with sufficient particularity the rail rates and practices upon which investigation was sought. The petition filed in March was accompanied by letters from Secretary Patterson, Secretary Patterson and Secretary Wallace urging early inquiry into competitive rail rates.

Food Service Schools Open

With the opening of the first classes 10 July in the reorganized Army Bakers and Cooks Schools under the control of the Quartermaster Corps, these training centers were designated the Army Food Service Schools.

Under a War Department directive, effective 1 June, control of these schools passed from the Army Service Commands to the Office of the Quartermaster General. The reorganization provides for standardization of training in all activities relative to the preparation of Army food, and the schools will hereafter serve to provide personnel for all Army food service activities. The courses are being revised to conform with information developed during and since the war.

Courses will be conducted at Fort Dix, N. J.; Fort Meade, Md.; Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Knox, Ky.; Fort Sheridan, Ill.; Fort Riley, Kans.; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; the Presidio of San Francisco; and a sub-school of the Presidio at Fort Lewis, Wash. However, it is planned later to close the schools at Fort Dix, Fort Riley, and Fort Lewis and confine the instruction to the six remaining schools.

Each school will have a capacity for 50 cooks per class, two classes running concurrently, 20 officers for mess management, 20 officers for food service supervisors, 20 mess sergeants, and for courses in meat cutting, pastry baking, and bread baking.

Personnel may be assigned to the schools from any of the Army services.

Disability Review Board

The Secretary of War's Disability Review Board, organized to review upon request the case of any officer retired or placed on inactive duty, without pay, for physical disability, has reversed decisions of retiring or disposition boards in approximately 25 percent of the 1,100 cases reviewed since 1 Sept. 1944, the War Department announced 9 July.

In each of the cases reversed by the Disability Review Board the officer was certified as entitled to receive the same retirement pay benefits now provided by law or regulation for officers of corresponding grade and length of service in the Regular Army. Retiring boards already have granted physical disability retirement pay to more than 2,200 officers.

In many cases in which the Disability Review Board reversed retiring boards' decisions, additional evidence and information was submitted which either had not been available or had not been presented at the time retiring boards took action.

Officers retired or on inactive duty without pay for physical disability and who desire review of retiring or disposition boards' findings should so inform The Adjutant General, Washington, D. C., in writing. Such applicants, if entitled under the law to have their cases reviewed, are sent formal application blanks.

Navy Legal Specialists

Educational and age requirements for Regular Navy law specialists have been lowered in order that applicants for transfer in this specialty branch, if once refused, may resubmit their requests.

Educational requirements are now the same required for line officers plus a degree in law from a law school accredited by the American Bar Association, or a degree in law from any law school and admission to practice before the bar in any state, territory, or the District of Columbia.

Age requirements of ranks of Lieutenant Commander and below have been changed from ages for "engineering duty only", officers to those listed for the Medical Corps in BuPers C/L 288-45.
